AEWA CSR

- Why a Conservation Status Report?
  - One of the mandatory reviews under AEWA AP para 7.4
- Reviews the size and trends of all AEWA populations
  - 553
- Produced for each MOP
- Report by the Technical Committee; commissioned to Wetlands International

CSR7 – key new conclusions

- The overall status of AEWA populations has improved during the Strategic Plan period 2009-2018
- Increasing number of mainly marine and farmland species are listed as Globally Threatened and Near Threatened and in significant long-term decline
- Good governance is the most important determinant of the trend of waterbird populations

CSR7 – key new conclusions

- Species recovery plans positively influence the trend of waterbird populations in the long-term. However, species are becoming globally threatened more rapidly than they can be recovered
- Achieving AEWA's targets and ensuring its contribution to the Aichi Targets and Sustainable Development Goals require integration of bird conservation into a wide range of other sectoral policies
