

Jointly hosted by:

Wetlands International invites you to the Waterbirds Around the World Conference to be held in Edinburgh from 3-8 April 2004

Jointly hosted by the United Kingdom and The Netherlands, with support from the Convention on Migratory Species, The Convention on Wetlands, BirdLife International, North American Waterbird Conservation Plan, CIC, FACE, Waterbird Society, CAFF, Pacific Seabird Group and many other national and international organisations.

Waterbirds Around the World will focus on all major themes and developments related to the global conservation of waterbird flyways during their full annual cycle: breeding areas, stop-over sites and wintering areas, harvest of waterbirds, site networks, flyway monitoring, flyway management plans, climate change and flyways, nomadic migration and many more. It will address achievements of the last 40 years and formulate gaps and needs for initiatives to stimulate future conservation of the world's flyways and the species and habitats involved.

Please take the time to fill out the Expression of interest form to register and receive more information or register online at www.wetlands.org
